Age Equity Alliance Board of Director Nate Gay Resigns

Austin TX - The Age Equity Alliance (AEA) Board of Directors announces the resignation of founding member Nate Gay, effective January 1, 2022. Nate, a senior software engineer with WPEngine, was instrumental in the early formation of Age Equity Alliance and sponsored all of AEA's technology requirements.

"Nate's contribution over the last 2 years has been key, not only in shaping the organization, but also by sharing his technology genius," said Sheila Callaham, AEA executive director and board chair. "He hosted all of our technology requirements and content storage solutions and was a patient teacher. If it was technology-related, he was part of it."

Nate was elected as one of the five founding board members in May, 2020, and also served as the Board Secretary.

"I am grateful for his willingness to be a part of AEA's unfolding, and know he will continue to share his philanthropy in other deserving ways!"

About Age Equity Alliance

Age Equity Alliance is a 501(c)(3) partnering with companies, organizations, and communities to create workplace age equity across the age spectrum. AEA accomplishes this through training, education, age equity audits, and consultation. AEA has collaborated with the National Council on Aging and the International Longevity Center-UK, as well as age-friendly communities and US-based companies. AEA was recently named as a knowledge partner on a collaborative project with AARP, Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and the World Economic Forum. The international program "Living, Learning, and Earning Longer" examines the policies and practices needed to support a multigenerational workforce.
